NEWS

CLEAN SLATE Stella by Stella McCartney incorporates the designer's ecoconsciousness into a trio of planet-friendly skincare products: Reset Cleanser, Restore Cream, and Alter-Care Serum (at left, $140). Each formula is infused with a refreshing aroma created by perfumer Francis Kurkdjian, using 90 percent natural-origin ingredients. "I was inspired by my mom, who would make her own oils from the roses in our garden," McCartney tells Bazaar.

MOOD-BOOSTING BLEND Keep memories of summer alive with Dior's juicy new J'adore Parfum d'eau ($148). The fashion house's first water-based fragrance is made without alcohol (which can decrease a scent's concentration—and longevity) and emits a sunny mix of jasmine, orange blossom, and magnolia that will mentally transport you to a seaside holiday in the south of France.

INDULGENT ESCAPE

Malibu's buzziest wellness retreat, the Ranch, opened a new location in May at the Palazzo Fuggi resort, an hour outside Rome—but now (without the summer crowds) is the ideal time to go. The Ranch's signature eight-day program (from $9,100 per person) includes four-hour morning hikes, plant-based cuisine, daily massages, health consultations, and scheduled nap time in your room or by the pool.

PLEASING TO THE EYE These luxe launches will pamper and perfect the eye area. Augustinus Bader the Eyebrow and Lash Enhancing Serum ($150) uses the brand's proprietary TFC8 cellular-renewal complex, plus biotin and castor oil, to strengthen follicles and support healthier lash and brow growth. Guerlain Orchidée Impériale the Molecular Concentrate Eye Cream ($325) boasts the brand's highest concentration of orchid extracts to lift and firm slack skin. And Charlotte Tilbury Beautiful Skin Radiant Concealer ($32) is a silky long-wearing formula that brightens the eye and hides imperfections while delivering nourishing vitamin C, niacinamide, and vegan collagen to the skin. HB

FRENCH DELICACY

Le Rouge Français, the botanical makeup line beloved by Parisians, is now available in the U.S. Every color product in the collection—lipstick, mascara, and even nail lacquer—contains pigment derived from either flowers or vegetables. Our pick: Rouge Tinctorial lipstick ($45), which is available in 15 vibrant, refillable shades and one clear balm.
